

FOSTER CARE

What is Foster Care?

Foster care is a temporary arrangement where adults provide for the care of a child or children when their birth parents cannot, for a variety of reasons, care for them. Foster Care is not Adoption.

Foster families provide safe, healthy and stable homes for children until their 'forever family' is identified.

The goal for a child in foster care is usually reunification with the birth family adoption depending on the child's best interest. While foster care is temporary, adoption is permanent.

Who are Foster Children?

Foster children are like any other children. They all require love, comfort, security and stability. Most foster children have unique needs because they've come from unique experiences.

- A foster child can be of any age, caste, ethnicity, religion or gender.
- Some children will need to stay in foster care for just a short time and others may need to stay longer.
- A foster child may have developmental or physical disabilities.
- All children in foster care have experienced loss. Loss of people that they love, and loss of what is familiar to them, even if they are still very young.

Who can be a Foster Parents?
